

BROKEN ROUTES:

RUST BELT COMMUNITIES AND THE AUTOMOBILE PANEL DISCUSSION

TUESDAY MAR. 23 7-8PM

Arthur Rothstein, Sign, Birmingham, Alabama, 1937, printed 1987.

Since its inception, the Interstate Highway System—and the cars that journey across it—have connected and fragmented American neighborhoods in complicated ways. In this panel discussion, curators from across the region explore the social, political, and environmental impact of cars on our communities.

Registration for this free Zoom event is required. Visit broadmuseum.msu.edu to learn more.

MSU BROAD

ART AND ACTIVISM:

JENNY KENDLER IN CONVERSATION WITH ELIZABETH CORR

WEDNESDAY MAR. 17 7-9PM

Jenny Kendler, Research image of Textile Cone Snail for Shroud for an Atheist, 2020.

Join Jenny Kendler in conversation with Elizabeth Corr to explore how Kendler's work animates science, advocacy, and environmental issues. Attendees will have the opportunity to participate in the conversation and learn about ways they can also support environmental justice and ecological preservation in their own communities.

Registration for this free Zoom event is required. Visit broadmuseum.msu.edu to learn more.

MSU BROAD